TRANSFER OF ASSETS

- Penalty periods transfer by a spouse that results in a penalty period for the individual--9.
  - The agency apportions any existing penalty period between the spouses using the method outlined below, provided the spouse is eligible for Medicaid. A penalty can be assessed against the spouse, and some portion of the penalty against the individual remains.

The existing penalty period is divided in half and apportioned evenly between the spouses.

- If one spouse is no longer subject to a penalty, the remaining penalty period must be served by the remaining (b) spouse.
- Treatment of income as an asset— When income has been transferred as a lump sum, the agency will calculate the penalty period on the lump sum value. 10.

The agency will impose partial month penalty periods.

When a stream of income or the right to a stream of income has been transferred, the agency will impose a penalty period for each income payment.

- For transfers of individual income payments, the agency will impose partial month penalty periods.
- For transfers of the right to an income stream, the agency will use the actuarial value of all payments transferred.
- The agency uses an alternate method to calculate penalty periods, as described below:

TRANSFER OF ASSETS

11. Imposition of a penalty would work an undue hardship—
The agency does not apply the transfer of assets provisions in any case in which the agency determines that such an application would work an undue hardship. The agency will use the following procedures in making undue hardship determinations:

The agency makes a decision regarding the effect of the transfer of assets on the individual's eligibility.

If there is no effect on eligibility, no further action is required.

If the transfer results in a penalty period that affects present eligibility, the agency sends a notice to the individual advising him or her regarding the penalty period, and informing the individual of the opportunity to rebut.

If the individual claims undue hardship, the agency evaluates the claim based on the criteria described below.

The following criteria will be used to determine whether the agency will not count assets transferred because the penalty would work an undue hardship:

Undue hardship exists if:

- 1. The individual has been threatened with eviction from an LTCF or medical institution and has exhausted all legal methods to prevent the eviction; or
- 2. The individual's medical provider has threatened to terminate home and community-based services provided under a waiver; and
- 3. The transferee is no longer in possession of the transferred asset and the transferee has no other assets of comparable value with which to pay the cost of care; and
- 4. There is no family member or other individual or organization able and willing to provide care to the individual.
